SUMMER'S END

Just like early spring, early fall is a busy time when we make up for the encumbrances of the previous season. Perhaps we're still living on the agriculture-influenced clock, but this year it truly was too damn hot to do much.

On Sept. 21 of this month – a Tuesday – at 16 minutes before the stroke of noon, you can kiss this summer good-bye. Feel free to balance some eggs on end in celebration.

In case you forget, marking this event is the waxing harvest moon, which reaches fullness about two days later.

Not that we need much in the way of celestial events to let us know that recess is coming to an end. By the time we close the books on the season, the local youth will have spent nearly a month in the classroom. And, given the scorcher that this summer will be remembered for, I expect we'll see sweaters in style a littler earlier than usual.

Earlier on this month, you may be among the many making one last dash to the shore over Labor Day – that is, provided one of those storm systems now departing the west coast of Africa and headed toward Cape Verdes doesn't spoil the fun.

Amid all the change, keeping an eye on the Atlantic weather is a constant in September, which has a tendency to see more visits by cyclones than any other month.

(Please note that we're collecting readers' stories about experiences during various tropical storms. So feel free to drop me a line at editor@carrborocitizen.com)

Throughout this month, the calendar is typically full, with the Carrboro Music Festival on Sept. 26 one of the standouts of course. You may also wish to note that the first Carolina home game commences at noon on Saturday the 18th.

And for all of us who are planning to spend any time in front of a television watching playoffs, kick-offs or new-season spinoffs, please remember that this is an election year, and a right cranky one. Having recently returned from a nearby state that just endured a contentious and well-financed primary, I'll share this simple advice from the dazed survivors: Prepare to mute.

ART NOTES

From "Local Motives" by Shannon Bueker

MURAL CONTEST

WCOM – Carrboro's Low-power Wonder – is in its new home in the old Don Christian Oil Company building. To help gussy up their new digs, the folks at FM 103.5 are seeking proposals for a mural.

The mural will be painted on the concrete block wall facing the parking lot and WCOM will supply volunteers to help paint and $100 in supplies. Submissions will be accepted in digital form until the last day in September. A volunteer judging committee will select the winner, subject to approval by the station's board of directors and approval by the Carrboro appearance commission. Installation should be in November.

Entries or questions can be sent to Tofu Dave at wcom@davidbellin.com

OPENINGS

Art walking

Several openings are coming with this month's 2ndFriday Artwalk on, well, Friday, Sept. 10.

Among the highlights are the North Carolina Clay Invitational at FRANK Gallery, which features the works of more than 30 artists from around the state, including Nick Joerling, Leah Leitsen, Cynthia Bringle, Suze Lindsay, Mary Ann Prack and many others, as well as Chatham County's own Mark Hewitt. Also: "Local Motives," new paintings by Shannon Bueker of Not Now, Kato! Fine Art Studio in Pittsboro.

Hewitt Kiln opening

The works coming out of the 79th firing of Mark Hewitt's salt kiln have a local twist. According to Hewitt, a new glaze variation using Chapel Hill grit fired to a soft, shiny gray has yielded a perfect salt glaze.

The local grit, along with new vases inspired by classical Greek styles, is available this Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

For directions, go to hewittpottery.com

Art glass and snapshots at the Ackland

The new Ackland exhibit "Flowers from Earth and Sand: Art Glass and Ceramics, 1880-1950" opens Sept. 12 and runs through Dec. 12.

The collection features a look at the bold innovations in decorative art that happened between the 1880s and the 1930s, including the glazes and ornament designs of artists like the Frenchman Clement Massier and the craftsmen of the Hungarian Zsolnay Factory. Nearly a hundred examples of luxury vases and other vessels with accompanying prints, posters and illustrated books show how the style expressed in these luxury objects also infused popular culture.

Later this month, the Ackland opens "Big Shots: Andy Warhol Polaroids," an exhibit featuring 250 Polaroids and 70 silver gelatin black-and-white prints taken by Warhol between 1970 and 1987, many of them on public view for the first time.

ONE MAN'S QUEST FOR PAD THAI

If you're lucky in life, you may someday realize your destiny. If you are very lucky, you may achieve it.

The Eater's old pal Andy McMillan is of the very lucky few. Andy, a Chapel Hill native and the son of Florence and the late Campbell "Dr. Mac" McMillan, owned and ran the fondly remembered Lizard & Snake, which featured southwestern cuisine.

Lately, he's been putting in a lot of miles hauling and setting up exhibits for Carrboro design firm Sitzer-Spuria Studios. In addition to being able to tell you everything you wanted to know about various convention centers, McMillan has become a discriminating enthusiast when it comes to Pad Thai.

A month or two back, he was eating a particularly tasty dish of the southeast Asian favorite, when it hit him.

"I said to myself, 'I could eat this every day,'" he told The Eater in an exclusive interview. "So I did."

For a fortnight, McMillan sought out and consumed Pad Thai in 13 restaurants throughout the Chapel Hill-Carrboro metroplex.

The results of this intrepid, peanut-topped adventure are far too detailed to work into the space allotted. But McMillan's findings have been verified since by not only this reporter but also a myriad of fellow Pad Thai fans.

In the top tier, all-alone, says Andy, is Merlion in Southern Village, which serves up a balanced, complex and thoroughly enjoyable version.

In the next tier is Thai Palace – which could have ranked a tier higher, but was deemed a little pricey – and Penang.

Occupying the next tier are the two (apparently unrelated)

China Woks, in Timberlyne and Carrboro Plaza, and downtown Carrboro's Jade Palace, which is good, McMillan says, but untraditional in its flavorings. "It's a little weird."

Way down at the bottom of the list is Noodles and Company on Franklin Street. "They served me something that looked a little like Pad Thai, but it wasn't Pad Thai."

We commend McMillan on his valiant effort and are awaiting the next chapter in his culinary quests. His next exploit, no doubt cooked up over a long haul from Vegas or something, is a little worrisome in the cholesterol department.

"I've been thinking a lot about BLTs," he said.

The Eater, who out of sheer concern suggests splitting them with someone, stands ready to help.

BEST. FOOD. EVER.

The above title was intended just to get attention (we're all so busy these days). "Best of" lists are tedious and kind of pointless, and The Eater would never stoop so low as to have a "Best of" contest. When it comes to food, "the wisdom of the crowd" is more often "the reflex of the herd." Besides, why have a contest when you've already made up your mind?

So, with no fanfare other than the windy paragraph above, The Eater names Brinkley Farms field peas the Best Food Ever of 2010.

Cooked right with a little pork and served with some butter and salt they are over-the-top wonderful. They're available at many of the local farmers' markets in the shell or shelled and fresh frozen. Brinkley, which converted from growing mainly tobacco several years ago, is a heavy producer of the classic varieties of Southern field peas, which are among the most healthy and delicious foods you can add to your diet.

Eat some. Awesome. Not kidding.

DO'S AND DONUTS

Ok, you're going to have to admit that it is likely you're going to have a Krispy Kreme adventure at some point. As someone who just offered to help eat a dozen or so BLTs, The Eater is no one to preach. But if you must venture to East Franklin Street and do something you'll never admit to your cardiologist, at least wait till the "hot" sign comes on and those little wheels of wonder are at their most sublime.

ROLLING EATS: A SURVEY OF LOCAL FOOD TRUCKS

BY CATHERINE RIERSON

We've been privy to the taco truck secret for some time now, but what no one predicted was mobile food's voracious expansion. It's not just taco trucks that pepper the town anymore: Food trucks are everywhere, with pasta, Indian, crepe, burger and juice offerings joining the ranks. We're fortunate to be at the heart of this mobile gastronomy, but you've gotta know where to look.

CAPTAIN PONCHO'S

100 S. Merritt Mill Rd.
636-1700
Monday-Friday 8am-2pm
Friday & Saturday 6pm-4am
Cash only

The only truck to serve breakfast, Captain Poncho's offers the reliable and quick breakfast burrito. And for those looking for something more authentic, the chilaquiles, a traditional Mexican breakfast dish with fried tortilla strips (handmade tortilla, that is) topped with your choice of meat and salsa roja or mole. The pastor (pork) is a common favorite – it's spicy and contains chunks of grilled pineapple. Ask about the cabeza de puerco, a pork head steamed with marinade and spices.

CARRBORO RAW

150 E. Main St.
448-1470
carrbororaw.com
Monday-Friday 10:30 am-4:30pm
Saturday 10am-4pm
Cash or credit with a $10 minimum

Carrboro's only bona fide juicer in a truck, Carrboro Raw blends organic leafy vegetables, seasonal fruits, nut milks and superfoods to make light, sweet or savory juices and smoothies. Sitting cozily between Jade Palace and the Spotted Dog, it's a perfect spot for a mid-afternoon snack.

ONLYBURGER

Find its location on Twitter:
twitter.com/onlyburger
724-1622
Hours vary
Cash or credit

OnlyBurger is unique to Durham, but an anxious clientele to the west is eagerly anticipating the truck's occasional visit around these parts. It offers no frills – burgers and fries made to order in less than 10 minutes – but it's hard to find a better burger. OnlyBurger is always on the move for lunch and dinner, so check Twitter before setting out to find it. And if you're going to the Durham Farmers' Market, the truck will be there – best not leave without having the breakfast burger, which comes with an egg or a fried green tomato.

PARLEZ-VOUS CREPE

906-2305
parlezvouscrepe.com
Saturday at Johnny's 9am-2pm
Thursday at So. Village 5pm-8pm
Cash only

No need to go to a fancy French restaurant: Sweet and savory delights a la française are served in trucks too. The savory La Fermière – fried egg, spinach, cheese and veggie or pork sausage wrapped in a warm crepe – is a foodie's dream, and there's always the old standby dessert crepe, nutella and banana. Vegans and vegetarians aren't left out either: For a savory crepe, you can choose from classic, buckwheat or vegan batter; and for a sweet one, the classic or chocolate batter. The menu is ever-changing at Parlez-Vous Crepe, but almost anything the French-educated chef cooks is delish.

COSTA SUR

309 N. Greensboro St.
Thursday-Sunday 6pm-midnight
Cash only

For those living in town, this truck, which sits adjacent to downtown Carrboro, is one of the more convenient locations to grab grub on wheels. Tamales are a specialty, particularly tamales de pollo en salsa verde (chicken tamale with green salsa). If you're really hungry, get a torta, an enormous sandwich on thick Mexican-baked bread, and don't be afraid to order it with buche (beef belly). Wash it down with one of the melon juices (aguas frescas).

LATIN GRILL AT JOHNNY'S

901 W. Main St.
Thursday-Sunday 6 pm-midnight
Cash only

The truck at Johnny's features lamb and chorizo, not yet found (at least by this eater) at any other truck. The consome de borrego (lamb soup) or taco de borrego (lamb) are an epicure's dream; but if that's too indulgent or too hot for summer, go for the carnita (fried pork) burrito or taco de tripe. For something sweet, order the mango for dessert. It's dusted with chili powder, served on a skewer and it's even better coupled with sweetened rice milk (horchata).

TAQUERÍA DEL JALISCO

206 E. Main St.
Tuesday-Saturday 6pm-1am
Cash only

Well known for its consistency, this truck regularly sates Carrboroites' late-night cravings. The pupusa, a thick tortilla generally filled with cheese and pork, then grilled flat like a pancake and topped with cabbage, is one of its most popular items, but you can always depend on the pastor burrito to put you to sleep.

FALL PREVIEW

PRESERVATION HALL JAZZ BAND

THE BARD

OMARA PORTUONDO

Time to sit down with your iCal or whatever and figure out how you're going to fit all the events in a jam-packed fall. We've detailed a list of some of the special events and concerts ahead, especially the kind that quickly sell out.

THE ARTSCENTER

Grammy Award-winner Shelby Lynne kicks off the fall season, which also features the return of The Monti; an eerie Transactors show; and a play with Puck, Ophelia and zombies. Highlights include:

- Sept. 11: The Monti — The season opens with favorite storytellers George Singleton, David Gessner, Belle Boggs and Greg Taylor.
- Sept. 15: Shelby Lynne with Charlie Mars — Touring her new record, Tears, Lies, and Alibis
- Sept. 18: John Cowan — Newgrass innovator with Jeff Autry on guitar and fiddler Shad Cobb
- Sept. 25: Gustafer Yellowgold — an official "SuperFun Show" for kids hailed by the New York Times as "a cross between Yellow Submarine and Dr. Seuss"

- Oct. 1: Transactors Suspense! — The troupe explores horror, mystery, thriller and sci-fi film genres with musical accompaniment by Killer Filler
- Oct. 8-9: Minus Sound Research featuring The Moaners, The Kingsbury Manx, Free Electric State & Birds and Arrows the first night and Americans in France, Shark Quest, North Elementary and Organos the next
- Oct. 15-17: Living Dead in Denmark — performed by the Youth Conservatory, the play is a comic book fantasia that throws Shakespeare's most beloved characters into an us-versus-zombies apocalyptic scenario
- Oct. 22: Dan Hicks & The Hot Licks — An American original and a snappy dresser at that
- Oct. 23: N.C. Songwriters Co-op Competition
- Nov. 6: PlaySlam! — The eighth annual event "where the audience calls the shots!"
- Nov. 18: Azure Ray — Touring their fourth album, Drawing Down the Moon artscenterlive.org

CAROLINA PERFORMING ARTS

"The first half of our season is very much geared toward presenting some of the world's major musical contributors of the past few decades," Emil Kang, CPA's executive director, said in announcing the season. Here's the proof:

- Sept. 9: McCoy Tyner — One of the true giants of jazz, that's him with Coltrane on A Love Supreme
- Sept. 15: Earl Scruggs — Hey, another giant, this one of the banjo. Earl is performing with special guests The Red Clay Ramblers
- Sept. 24: Chick Corea — fusion co-founder and jazz piano powerhouse
- Oct. 11: Hugh Masekela — South African trumpeter and freedom fighter
- Nov. 5: Omara Portuondo — Cuban songstress from the Buena Vista Social Club
- Nov. 10-11: Sutra — a collaboration between the monks of the Shaolin Temple and London dance producers Sadler's Wells

PLAYMAKERS REPERTORY COMPANY

The repertory company opens its 35th anniversary main stage season Sept. 22-Oct. 10 with William Shakespeare's romantic comedy As You Like It, which includes some of the Bard's most beloved characters in a charming tale of love at first sight, mix-ups, mistaken identities and comedy high and low. PlayMakers producing artistic director Joseph Haj directs the show.

Also during this fall's main-stage season, PlayMakers presents the Tony Award-winning play Fences by August Wilson

PRC²

PlayMakers PRC² series opens with Samuel Beckett's absurdist comedy Happy Days, Sept. 8-12. Not to be confused with the 1950s adventures of TV's Richie, Potsie and the Fonz, Happy Days is the story of Winnie, a woman inexplicably buried to her waist in a large and mounting mound of earth, and her insistence, even as the mound begins to consume her, that today is going to be a good day. Longtime PlayMakers company members Julie Fishell and Ray Dooley play Winnie and her husband, Willie.

A GUY WITH A LITERARY HABIT

BY VICKY DICKSON

Rosencrans Baldwin

Rosencrans Baldwin describes writers as "big-time book addicts." For him, the addiction began early: As a kid, he was a regular at Barrett's Bookstore in Darien, Conn., where Michael, behind the counter, always had a new title to recommend. Baldwin was allowed to take one book home every time he visited; his parents weren't wealthy, but they valued reading.

Baldwin looks at reading as a gateway to writing, so it's not much of a leap to speculate that he also finds writing addictive. A story he wrote as a sixth-grader, about a knight and a dragon, won a state contest. (Baldwin points out that he arrived at the awards ceremony to find himself in the midst of 4,000 other winners – but still.)

He braved the seriously cold winters of Waterville, Maine to take advantage of Colby College's excellent English department, where he minored in creative writing and focused on poetry. And who else but a writing addict would finish two (as-yet-unpublished) novels in his 20s, while also co-founding an online magazine, The Morning News, and doing stints as a pizza deliveryman and an ambulance attendant?

If it is an addiction, it's one that's starting to pay off, and not just for Baldwin. The Aug. 12 launch party at Flyleaf Books for Baldwin's newest novel drew more than 110 people, and the lucky attendees who bought a copy of the book before it sold out have a great read in store for them. You Lost Me There is a finely crafted story of a 50-something Alzheimer's researcher, who, after his wife's death, grows concerned with his own memory, questioning his recollections of his marriage. The evocative setting – Mt. Desert Island, Maine, where Baldwin spent his childhood summers – and fascinating characters make You Lost Me There very hard to put down.

It probably also takes a true writing addict to maintain a schedule like Baldwin's. He's now working on both a novel set in Tijuana and a travelogue-essay about Paris, where he and his wife spent a year and a half before moving to North Carolina. He's involved with The Morning News, writing and editing as well as searching the Internet for interesting news items to link to the site. And there are all the promotional activities required of an author whose new book is generating a lot of attention – such as a trip to Barrett's in September for another launch party for You Lost Me There. Michael has already been sent a copy.

Food-loving readers will relish a couple of very special events at Flyleaf this month. At 7 p.m. today (Thursday), Frances Mayes is scheduled to read from and discuss her newest book, Every Day in Tuscany: Seasons of an Italian Life. Tickets ($35) are required and include a signed hardcover copy of the book as well as hors d'oeuvres made by Foster's Market from the book's recipes. Reserve yours by calling 942-7373.

Then on Sept. 26, culinary giant Diana Kennedy comes to Flyleaf at 2 p.m. to talk about her latest book, Oaxaca Al Gusto: An Infinite Gastronomy. Since Kennedy is widely considered to be the foremost researcher, teacher and writer on regional foods in Mexico, lovers of Mexican cooking won't want to miss out on the opportunity to meet her. An added bonus is the chance to sample one of her book's delicious recipes, as rendered by Foster's Market.

We were thrilled to learn that one of news reporting's superheroes, Nicolas Kristof, will be in Chapel Hill on Sept. 14 to discuss Half the Sky: Turning Oppression into Opportunity for Women Worldwide, the book he's written with his wife, Sheryl WuDunn. His talk, part of the Frank Porter Graham lecture series, is free to the public and begins at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall on the UNC campus.

Independent Booksellers.

Flyleaf September Event Highlights:

Now in its 13th year, the Carrboro Music Festival has grown right along with the little downtown that hosts it.

You can't find a more musical stroll than to head from the Town Commons down either Weaver Street or Main Street and on to the big shows at Cats Cradle and The ArtsCenter.

Along with dozens of venues, food and fun things to do line the walk. Bring some water, wear your sunscreen and pick up a copy of The Carrboro Citizen for a complete listing of bands and venues. The Citizen's annual guide to the festival appears in our Sept. 23 issue.

The festival gets rolling at 1 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 26.

Ashley Melzer writes the Gimme Five! column for The Carrboro Citizen's MILL blog (carrborocitizen.com/mill/tag/gimme-five), in which she asks local bands five probing questions. Below is a selection of favorites from the column to date.

PHONTE AND BIG POOH OF LITTLE BROTHER

The Citizen: Who/what are a few inspirations or influences that might really surprise people?

Phonte: Queen Latifah is a big inspiration for me. I never would have guessed that the same girl who did "Wrath of My Madness" at 19 would be up for Emmy and Grammy awards and doing spots for Cover Girl some years later. Watching her evolution over the years has been really inspiring for me.

Big Pooh: For me, I would say Magic Johnson. His transition after basketball has been unbelievable. To be so passionate about one thing most of your life (basketball) and then to venture into the business world with the same passion and have an enormous amount of success is something I can only pray for.

BEN OF BEN DAVIS AND THE JETT$

TC: Describe how your sons have influenced your music.

Davis: Well, when my first son was born I went through a phase of introspection and writing quieter stuff. I now have another son who is 2 1/2 and we are all ready to get loud and stupid 24/7. My older son, Rick, is just turning 11 and plays drums and has his own bands. He has been putting on his own shows and fliering and stuff since he was 5 without any push from me. He's pretty amazing. I know a bunch of band parents with kids who have bands and are in fourth and fifth grade. The crop of young rockers in the Triangle is going to be insane.

ROB MONTEJO AND MONIKA BULLETTE OF THE SKY DROPS

TC: If your band were a quote from Rain Man, which would it be?

Montejo and Bullette: "You complete me." (sic)

PINCHE GRINGO

TC: What did you dream of being when you were a kid? How 'd that turn out?

Pinche: I wanted to be a vet.... Clearly, that did not work out. I will probably end up like those women in Grey Gardens, with the 50 cats and deteriorating house, drinking Schlitz on the porch and talking to anyone that will listen.
