August is a month of contradiction. Summer is at its lazy, catfish-jumping peak, and by the beginning of the month we all have the hot-weather slows, as our bodies have learned again that the only way to stay cool is to move as little as possible. Then, somewhere around mid-month, that all comes to an abrupt end. The town fills back up, as families return from vacations and Carolina students start pouring back in. You can hear the roar of civilization build as the university gears back up (residence halls open on Aug. 22) and the local schools do likewise (first day of school is Aug. 25.) Old Sol doesn't know that though, and as we get more crowded and congested he continues to beat down as hard as when we were all in mosey mode.

We invite you to not get too caught up in all the noise and haste of getting ready for the school year. As this issue of MILL indicates, there's still plenty to do other than scurrying around with the rest of the herd.

This issue also offers a kind of meditation on Carrboro, this paper's beloved hometown and a place that can sometimes be as confusing for longtime residents as it is for newcomers. We've included a few tips for getting around and making the most of life here that we hope will benefit both groups, as well those venturing into town for a visit. And there's a tough little quiz with tidbits of town history woven through it. Pass it and you're eligible to win a Carrboro Citizen coffee mug and T-shirt (details on page 5). Good luck and stay cool.

WHITE CROSS TRACTOR PULL

More than many places on the edge of the Carrboro-Chapel Hill metroplex, the folks at White Cross have managed to hang on to some of their rural heritage. Anchoring this each year is the August tractor pull, where even mothers and daughters join in the competition. Watching the heats is always fun, but so is just wandering and taking in the various vintage and souped-up farm gear. Homemade desserts and snacks round out the affair.

The White Cross Tractor Pull is Aug. 14 at 7 p.m. and Aug. 15 at 6 p.m.

PAPERHAND PUPPETS

For several years running, one of the highlights of the summer has been the invasion of the puppets at Forest Theater. Now in its 10th year, Paperhand Puppet Intervention presents The Living Sea of Memory, to remember and reclaim all of its puppet glory past. This summer's performances will be held every Friday, Saturday and Sunday from Aug. 7 to Sept. 6 at 7 p.m. with a different pre-show each night at 6:30 p.m. $10 for adults, $7 for kids 3-12 and free for kids under 2.

To get you in the mood for the puppets, there's a documentary by Pittsboro-based filmmaker Mark Barroso on the puppet makers and what inspires their work. A Puppet Intervention is being shown on July 31 at the Carrboro Century Center at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.

A FEW KEY THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT CARRBORO

HOW TO GET AROUND

Carrboro is a small town; walking and biking are really the best way to travel. But in lieu of those options, please note:

- The buses are fare free. You can check out schedules and times at ci.chapel-hill.nc.us/index.aspx?page=1176 or check on the system in real time at nextbus.com/predictor/simpleRouteSelector.shtml?a=chapel-hill. The F Bus runs the main route between Carrboro and Chapel Hill. Beware the 9-minute hold at McDougle School from 9 a.m. on. If you live anywhere near Hillsborough and Lorraine, pick it up as it heads east on Hillsborough from that intersection, and save yourself a few minutes.
- The official town traffic jams are located each morning and afternoon Monday through Friday from 7:42 to 8:09 a.m. and 4:31 to 5:27 p.m. or thereabouts on Main and Greensboro streets;

Tomato Day celebrated the glory of the ripe red fruit during Saturday's Farmers' Market. Besides the tasting and sampling of tomatoes and tomato concoctions (even tomato skeptics can't say no to that sugary sweet tomato jam), there was juggling, face-painting and general tomato merriment.

- The left-hand turn is not your friend. Trying to make one from Greensboro to head west on Weaver Street is the worst, as the traffic coming at you has a longer green light;
- You must yield to pedestrians in crosswalks, even if you are on the phone, in a hurry or pretending you don't see them;
- There are more than a dozen private and public parking lots neatly tucked away in the downtown area. There's an extensive parking report with lots of maps on the town documents page at townofcarrboro.com/docs.htm;
- If you are towed: The town recently passed an ordinance that says you can't be charged more than $100 if you've been towed away and $50 if you're on the hook, but still on the property. If you get charged more than that, challenge it.

How to find out what's going on

You're reading one of the best ways to find out about events and happenings. In addition to our monthly MILL publication, we publish weekly music and community calendars and maintain a "happenings blog" at carrborocitizen.com/mill

You can also check out our friends at Carrboro.com for events, history and things about town. For arts events, we recommend visiting walkcarrboro.com and 2ndFridayArtwalk.com

Farmers' Market tips

The market opens at 7:00 a.m. on Saturdays and has a bevy of regulars who know that getting there early guarantees you a better set of choices. Heirloom tomatoes and fruits, especially berries, go early. If you're not an early riser, you might want to check out the Wednesday afternoon market, which runs from 3:30 to 6:30. More information at carrborofarmersmarket.com

As for parking at the market, avoid the jam at Town Hall and park along Fidelity Street or in the downtown lots on East Main or Weaver streets.

Where to find free Wi-Fi

Wi-Fi is abundant throughout downtown, with the town's municipal wireless filling out the accessibility. Weaver Street Market is home to a fairly robust signal, as is Open Eye Café. Traffic in both places can bog down a bit when they get crowded.

What's up with all the food trucks?

The variety of mobile food wagons has grown over the years. There are taco trucks downtown, usually Thursday through Saturday, in the evenings and sometimes into the wee hours. Johnny's on West Main has a rotating selection, including a taco truck, a crepe wagon (lovely on a Sunday morning) and an awesome Indian buffet.

How to get a beverage in a crowded nightclub at 1:30 a.m.

The adage that there is never an excuse for being impolite is highly applicable in this situation. No pointing, whistling or other overzealous gesticulating. If you have cash in hand, that's a plus, but don't wave it around. In short, make it easy on the bartender. Keep the transaction simple, quick and polite, and they'll remember you next time as an easy-to-deal-with customer.

HOW MUCH DO YOU KNOW ABOUT CARRBORO?

TALES OF THE TOWN

BY VICKY DICKSON

Ever since her days as a flight attendant with American Airlines, Valarie Schwartz has known that people like to share their life stories with her. Back when attendants actually had time to chat with passengers, she was the one most likely to walk the aisle after meal service, hearing passengers' excitement about what awaited them when they landed. Or, sometimes, their dread of what lay ahead.

She's also known since she was 27 that she wanted to be a published writer. Her first attempt at a novel ended after six chapters, and she subsequently tried her hand at both screenplays and short stories. But it wasn't until Schwartz answered an ad for a feature writer in the Chapel Hill News that her talent for listening came together with her love of writing. The first feature she wrote, about a Chapel Hill High School production of Oklahoma, appeared on that paper's front page in 1996. Shortly thereafter, she took over the Neighbors column, which she wrote for 11 years before joining The Carrboro Citizen as a columnist.

Neighbors focused on the work of local nonprofits and civic groups, and Schwartz soon developed such a following that her calendar was booked months in advance. Her writing also caught the attention of History Press, though it wasn't until last December that the idea of a book based on Schwartz's columns was realized. The project progressed quickly; in two months, Schwartz both collected the photos she needed and wrote the collection of essays recently published as Remembering Chapel Hill: The Twentieth Century as We Lived It.

"I tried to pick stories that painted the best picture of what was at the heart of Chapel Hill in the 20th century," says Schwartz. The stories are diverse, including such luminaries as Bill and Ida Friday and Chapel Hill stalwarts like Frances Neal Hargraves, the first black teacher at Glenwood Elementary, whose mother, Alice Neal, cooked for university President Frank Porter Graham. Schwartz doesn't shy away from controversy, portraying the anger and hurt of the farmers whose lives were disrupted by the creation of the Cane Creek Reservoir and the sadness some graduates felt at the closing of Lincoln and Northside schools after integration. Her book will be of value to anyone interested in knowing how Chapel Hill has come to be the town it is today.

Carrboro residents will be happy to know that Schwartz's next project will be Remembering Carrboro. After that's accomplished, she hopes to get back to novel writing, and already has an idea for a historical novel that will unfold in the community around the Cane Creek Reservoir of Orange County. The novel's characters have already begun telling her their stories.

LIT NOTES

In upcoming weeks, there'll be numerous opportunities to hear Carrboro's own ERICA EISDORFER read from her debut novel, The Wet Nurse's Tale. She's making appearances at Durham's Regulator Bookshop on Aug. 6 at 7 p.m., at Raleigh's Quail Ridge Books on Aug. 26 at 7:30 p.m. and McIntyre's Fine Books in Ferrington Village on Aug. 29 at 11 a.m. Elizabeth Gilbert, author of Eat, Pray, Love, loved Erica's book. Come see why!

In September, look for another of Carrboro's resident writers, CLAY CARMICHAEL, at the children's area of the

N.C. Literary Festival. With appearances by Goosebumps author R.L. STINE, BRIAN PINKNEY, JUDY SCHACHNER, Hillsborough's JOHN CLAUDE BEMIS and many other noted authors and illustrators, the children's area is destined to be a real hit with our young readers. And young sports fans will be delighted to learn that players from the NBA, WNBA, CAROLINA HURRICANES, CAROLINA RAILHAWKS AND DURHAM BULLS will also read stories, give autographs and share team giveaways at the festival, which runs Sept. 10-13 at UNC (ncliteraryfes-

ART NOTES

ART LISTINGS HAVE MOVED

Galleries and artists please note that we have moved our art listings to next Thursday's regular issue of The Carrboro Citizen. If you would like your show or opening listed, please email your information to calendar@carrborocitizen.com by noon Monday, Aug. 3.

PLAYMAKERS AWARDED NEA GRANT

PlayMakers Repertory Company has been awarded a national arts grant for its upcoming production of The Life and Adventures of Nicholas Nickleby.

PlayMakers will receive a $30,000 "Access to Artistic Excellence Grant" in support of the theater's Nov. 11-Dec. 20 production of Nickleby.

The play by David Edgar, from the novel by Charles Dickens, will be the biggest production in PlayMakers' history, with 25 actors playing more than 150 characters.

In conjunction with the production, PlayMakers will launch an in-depth outreach program called "The Dickens Initiative:

From the Page to the Stage/Literature and the Art of Theatre." The initiative will focus on literacy through Dickens' storytelling, partnering with libraries, schools, book clubs and other organizations. An array of community events will be part of the initiative, including a week in residence by playwright David Edgar with a master class and public lecture.

ACKLAND NAMES CHIEF CURATOR

Peter Nisbet, formerly the Daimler-Benz Curator of the Busch-Reisinger Museum at the Harvard Art Museum, has been appointed chief curator of the Ackland Art Museum.

Nisbet will lead the Ackland's curatorial department, responsible for efforts including exhibitions and donor and collector cultivation.

Nisbet holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Cambridge University and a doctorate in art history from Yale University. Before joining Harvard in 1983, he held assistantships at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and the Yale University Art Gallery.
