PREFACE.

In the following publication the official records of officers of the United States Navy and Marine Corps have been brought down to January, 1901. The work contains, in alphabetical order, the names of all officers of the navy and marine corps, commissioned, warranted and appointed, including volunteer officers who have entered the service since the establishment of the navy department in 1798, showing the dates of their original entry, progressive rank, and the manner in which those no longer in the service severed their connection from it. The data has been compiled from the original manuscript records of the navy department and from the official navy registers, issued semi-annually by the department. The volume also contains a list of all midshipmen, cadet engineers and naval cadets who have entered the Naval Academy since its establishment, arranged alphabetically by classes.

A sketch of the navy from 1775 to 1798, with a register of the officers in service between those dates, as well as a complete and carefully revised list of vessels of the United States Navy from its inception to the present time, form a valuable feature of the work.

CHANGE OF ORGANIZATION.

The Act of Congress, approved 31 August, 1842, abolished the Board of Navy Commissioners and established in lieu thereof, the following Bureaus, viz:

- 1. Burcau Navy Yards and Docks.
- 2. Bureau Construction, Equipment and Repair.
- 3. Bureau Provisions and Clothing.
- 4. Burcau Ordnance and Hydrography.
- 5. Bureau Medicine and Surgery.

A subsequent Act of Congress, approved 5 July, 1862, established the following organization, viz:

- 1. A Bureau of Yards and Docks.
- 2. A Bureau of Equipment and Recruiting.
- 3. A Bureau of Navigation.
- 4. A Bureau of Ordnance.
- 5. A Bureau of Construction and Repair.
- 6. A Bureau of Steam Engineering.
- 7. A Bureau of Provisions and Clothing.
- 8. A Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

By order of the Secretary of the Navy the name of the Bureau of Equipment and Recruiting was, on July 1, 1889, changed to Bureau of Equipment.

An Act of Congress, approved July 19, 1892, changed the designation of Bureau of Provisions and Clothing to Bureau of Supplies and Accounts.

The present Bureau organization is as follows:

- 1. Bureau of Yards and Docks.
- 2. Bureau of Equipment.
- 3. Bureau of Navigation.
- 4. Bureau of Ordnance.
- 5. Bureau of Construction and Repair.
- 6. Bureau of Steam Engineering.
- 7. Bureau of Supplies and Accounts.
- 8. Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

THE NAVY FROM 1775 TO 1798.

For the facts connected with the events of our Revolutionary war we are indebted to the United States Naval Chronicle by Charles W. Goldsborough. We give simply the essential facts of the chronologist.

to the United States Naval Chronicle by Charles W. Goldsborough. We give simply the essential facts of the chrouologist.

During the Revolutionary war the superintending direction of the Navy was committed, in the first instance, to a Committee of three members of Congress, viz: Messrs. Deane, Langdon and Gadsden, who were, in October, 1775, required to fit out two swift sailing vessels, the one of 10 and the other of 14 guns, and a proportionate number of swivels and men, to cruise "eastward" for the purpose of intercepting such transports as might be laden with munitions of war, and other supplies for the British, then in possession of the town of Boston, and for such other purposes as Congress might direct. Having resolved to fit out two more vessels (30 October), viz., one of 20, the other of 36 guns, four members—Messrs. Hopkins, Hewes, R. H. Lee and J. Adams—were added to the Committee; and when Congress, by resolution of 13 December, 1775, determined to build thirteen additional vessels of war, they increased the number of the Naval Committee, so as to make it consist of one member form each colony, to be appointed, viz: Messrs. Bartlett, Hancock, Hopkins, Deane, Lewis, Crane, R. Morris, Read, Chase, R. H. Lee, Hewes, Gadsden and Houston.

To this Committee Naval subjects were generally referred, with an instruction to examine and report thereon, for the final decision of the House. Congress reserved to themselves the right to appoint all commission officers, as low as and including Third Lieutenants, and gave to the Committee the power of appointing all officers of subordinate rank. The Committee were authorized to give such instructions for the employment of the ships as might appear to them "most conducive to the defence of the United Colonies, and to the distress of the enemy's naval forces and vessels bringing supplies to their fleets and armies."

In performing the duties assigned to them, the Committee experienced great inconvenience for want of professional practical information, and non the subj

Colonles, and to the distress of the enemy's naval forces and vessels bringing supplies to their fleets and armies."

In performing the dutles assigned to them, the Committee experienced great inconvenience for want of professional practical information, and upon the subject being brought before Congress they resolved (6 November, 1776) "that three persons, well skilled in maritime affairs, should be immediately appointed to execute the business of the Navy under the direction of the Marine Committee, and allowed to each a salary of $1,500 per annum; and on 13 November, John Nixon, John Wharton and F. Hopkinson, Esqrs., were appointed. They were styled in the resolutions of Congress "The Continental Navy Board, or Board of Assistants of the "Marine Committee," and sometimes "Board of the Middle District." There was also an "Eastern Board," consisting of three persons, who executed the instructions of the Committee in their district.

This system of administering the civil department of the Navy continued, it is believed, till October, 1779, when Congress, by resolution (28), decided that a Board of Admiralty should be established, "to consist of three Commissioners not members of Congress, and two members of Congress, and three to form a Board, for the despatch of business." Early in 1781 (11 January) we find that James Reed, Esqr., was, by resolution of Congress, Invested with full power to conduct the business of the Navy Board in the "Middle Department," and soon after this (27 February) Major-General Alexander M'Dougali was elected Secretary of Marine. In the same year (29 August) it was resolved that an "Agent of Marine" should be appointed "with authority to direct, fit out, equip and employ, the ships and vessels of war belonging to the United States, according to such instructions as he shall from time to time receive from Congress;" and "that as soon as the said Agent shall enter into the execution of his office the functions and appointments of the Board of Admiralty, the several Navy Boards and all c of Admiralty, the several Navy Boards and all civil officers appointed under them' should cease.

In September (6) a resolution was passed, by which the duties prescribed to the "Agent of Marine." until he should be appointed, devolved on the Superintendent of Finance, Robert Morris, who, indeed, appears to have had the chief agency in the Civil Administration of the Navy during the greater part of the Revolutionary war. In the earliest periods we find that the orders of the commanders generally, bear his signature, and continued to be most frequently signed by him, until a Board of Admiralty was established, when the correspondence was directed under the superintending direction of the Board by Mr. John Brown, their Secretary. After the Board of Admiralty was abolished, we again find the chief duties of the Department devolving upon Mr. Morris. It would seem that the nation could not conveniently have conducted either its naval or its fiscal operations, without the agency of this distinguished patriot.

The list of officers, appointed during the Revolutionary war, are obviously imperfect; they are, however, as complete as the information in our possession will enable us to make them. The frequent changes in the administration of the Civil Department of the Navy, the occasional resolutions of Congress conferring sometimes upon one of the Boards the power of appointing; at others given to individual members, in conjunction with commanders, authority to appoint subalterns, the destruction of papers by fires and other causes, have involved this branch of the officers. Were the information attainable, it this day, to present a perfect list of the officers. Were the information attainable, it would be particularly gratifying to show, not only the names of those who served in the Continental Navy, but of those also who served on board the ships fitted out at the expense of the respective colonies and on board privateers.

From the Journals of Congress and other sources, we find the following Commission Officers were appointed by them during the war.

On referring to the list of Captains and Commanders, and comparing it with the list established by resolution of 10 October, 17.76, it will be seen, that Congress, in arranging the rank did not include the names of Ezra Hopkins, William Manly, Isaac Cozneau, Sam-

The rank did not include the names of Ezra Hopkins, William Manly, Isaac Cozneau, Samul Tompkins or Christopher Miller.

It is presumed that the Commanders appointed after 10 October, 1776, ranked according to the dates of their respective appointments.

Having established the relative rank of Commanders in the Navy—with each other, Congress, on 15 November following, resolved, that the rank of Naval Officers as to the rank of Officers in the land service, should be

On 29 October it was "Resolved, That no private ship or vessel of war, merchant tures of the United States to appoint gentlemen in their respective States skillful in physics and surgery, to examine those who offer to serve as Surgeons or Surgeon's Mates, in the Army or Navy; and that no Surgeon shall hereafter receive a commission or warrant to act as such in the Army or Navy, who shall not produce a certificate from some one of the examiners, so to be appointed, to prove that he is qualified to execute his office." office.

On 29 October it was "Resolved, That no private ship or vessel of war, merchant ship or other vessels belonging to the subjects of these States, be permitted to wear pendants, when in company with Continental ships or vessels of war without leave from the commanding vessel thereof,"

During the war Congress authorized the purchasing, or building and equipping, as

During the war Congress authorized the purchasing, or building and equivalently stated by the control of vessels: 1775, October 13, 2 vessels of 10 and 14 guns. 1775, October 30, 2 vessels of 20 and 36 guns. 1775, December 13, 13 vessels, 5 of 32 guns, 5 of 28 guns, and 3 of 24 guns. 1776, October 3, viz., 1 frigate and 2 cutters. 1776, November 9, 10, 3 of 74 guns, 5 of 36 guns. 1 of 18 guns, and 1 packet. 1777, January 23, 2, viz., 1 of 36 guns and 1 of 18 guns.

Eight prize vessels were, during the years 1776 and 1777, directed to be purchased and fitted out, and in the course of the war a number of cutters, dispatch boats, galleys, and fire-ships were, from time to time, authorized. The cutters and dispatch boats were generally under the direction of a Secret Committee, one of whose duties was to procure munitions of war, and who, for that purpose, were authorized to export certain articles of provisions to the West Indies. The galleys and fire-ships were for the defence of our waters, within land-locked navigation and the lakes.

The thirteen ships authorized on 13 December, 1775, were directed to be built—one in New Hampshire, two in Massachusetts Bay, one in Connecticut, two in Rhode Island, two in New York, four in Pennsylvania, and one in Maryland, and, by resolution of 6 June, 1776, they were named as follows: The Congress, Randolph, Hancock, Washington, Trumbull, Raleigh, Effingham, Montgomery, Warren, Boston, Virginia, Providence and Delaware.

Delaware.

Among those authorized, subsequent to 13 December, 1775, and not hereinbefore mentioned by name, we find the Columbus, 28; the Queen of France, 28; the Ranger, 18; the Alliance, 32, built at Salisbury, Mass.; the Hornet, brig, General Gates, frigates Confederacy, Deane (afterwards changed to Hague), and Ariel, sloop Saratoga Duc de Lauzun, and the America, 74.

General letters of reprisal were authorized on 23 March, 1776, and thenceforth the public and private cruisers of the United Colonies were at liberty to capture all vessels, armed or unarmed, belonging to the Crown, or to the inhabitants of Great Britain.

Late in the month of December, 1775, a small squadron, consisting of the Alfred, Commodore Ezekiel Hopkins, of 28 guns; the Columbus, Captain A. Whipple, of 14 guns; the Andrew Doria, Captain Nicholas Biddle, of 14 guns; the Sebastian Cabot, Captain John D. Hopkins, of 16 guns, and the Providence, ——Hazard, of 12 guns, with the Falcon, Scorplon and Cruiser, which were to join them at Cape Fear, were ordered to New Providence, for the purpose of selzing and transporting to the colonies a large quantity of ammunition, which, it was understood, was deposited in the Royal Magazine on that island. After landing there was some unaccountable delay, and the Governor heard of Commodore Hopkins' approach, in time to remove the powder, before he reached the town. Thus the expedition failed as to the principal object. The Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, with about 40 cannon, a quantity of shot and shell and a few brass mortars were captured. A bomb-brig of 8 guns and a schooner of 6 guns were taken by the squadron on its return. return.

Commodore Hopkins' conduct was inquired into by Congress, and it was found that he had not paid due regard to the tenor of his instructions, which "directed him to annoy the enemy's ships upon the coast of the Southern States." The reasons he assigned for not going from Providence to the Carolinas were not satisfactory, and on 16 August, 1776, Congress passed a vote of censure upon him. Three days afterward he was ofdered to Newport, to take "command of the fleet formerly under his care." It is found, however, that Congress, in aranging the rank of the officers on 10 October following, omitted his

Although in the earlier periods of the Revolutionary war great embarrassments were experienced for want of an efficient marine force, still much was done by the vessels of war we then possessed, and by privateers, whose energy, enterprise and success were astonishingly great, considering the overwhelming force by which they were opposed. The number of captures in the course of the war has been stated at 803, of which there were either retaken, burnt, ransomed, sunk, restored or lost 153, leaving a gain to the nation of 650. If we estimate these as averaging 250 tons, and compute their value at $30 per ton, and their cargoes at $10,000 each, the amount of captures would be $11,375,000. Some English authors have estimated the value of the prizes taken in the year 1776 by the American cruisers at one million sterling.

That our vessels captured property worth millions of dollars is unquestionably true, but it appears impossible to form any precise estimate as to their value.

It is not in our power, nor is it the purpose of this paper, to afford particular information as to the movements of our national ships during the Revolutionary war, and we are obliged to omit giving a description of any of those brilliant achievements that occurred during that eventful period.

Of the ships of the line authorized during the Revolutionary war only one, the America, was built, and she was presented (3 September, 1782) to his Most Christian Majesty, the King of France, in testimony of the sense entertained by Congress of his generous exertions in behalf of the United States, and to replace in his service the Magnique, which, by accident, was lost in the harbor of Boston. Of the other ships built and purchased during the Revolutionary war, the whole were either captured or destroyed by the enemy or sold by the United States. We find (21 Apri this report Congress concurred.

Upon the application of the Delegates of Virginia, Congress, by resolution (3 October, 1783), authorized that State to keep, at its own expense, two armed vessels "for the defence of the trade of that State," confining the force of each to fourteen six-pounders and seventy-five men.

The United States had but recently achieved their independence and assumed a rank among the nations of the earth—they were still greatly embarrassed with the expenses of a long, bloody, yet glorious war; when the Dey of Algiers, tempted by a spirit of cupidity, selzed some of their merchant vessels, and conducted their crews to slavery. This perfidious conduct produced the strongest Indignation; but it was not in the power of the nation to avenge the insult, as promptly as the feelings it excited, or as sound national policy dictated. Negotiations were of necessity resorted to, but such were the difficulties which the policy of the Dey imposed, and such was our feeling condition, with respect to arms, that years elapsed before any favorable result was produced.

In this state of things we find the origin of the Act of Congress of 27 March, 1794, authorizing six frigates to be provided—which, however, were to be suspended in the event of peace with Aigiers,

of peace with Algiers.

The resolution of the House of Representatives (of 2 January, 1794 "that a naval force adequate to the protection of the commerce of the United States against the Algerine corsairs ought to be provided," was passed by a majority of two votes only, and the bill founded upon this resolution (27 March, 1794) was passed by a majority of eleven, but it is understood that it could not have been passed if the provision suspending all proceedings in the event of peace with Algiers had ben omitted. Under these circumstances the Fresident, General Washington, determined to build the vessels contemplated in the first section of the Act, viz: Four 44-gun and two 36-gun frigates, and that they should be built in the following posts viz: should be built in the following ports, viz:

At BostonOne
At New YorkOne
At PhiladelphiaOne
At Portsmouth, VaOne
At BaltimoreOne
At Portsmouth, N. HOne

No time was lost in making every preparatory arrangement for the building of these vessels. Mr. Joshna Humphreys, of Philadelphia, a distinguished shipbuilder of very extensive practical knowledge in his profession; Mr. John Hackett, of Salisbury, Mass., who had constructed and built the Alliance frigate, and others were consulted "upon the best properties to be adopted as a general plan for the vessels now to be built," and upon the most advisable means of procuring the frames and the materials of which the vessels ought to be built. The models submitted by Mr. Humphreys were, after much consultation and consideration, adopted; and that gentleman was on 28 June, 1794, appointed the constructor and master-builder of the 44-gun ship, to be built at Philadelphia, with a salary of $2.000 per annum, commencing on 1 May.

The President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, appointed the following gentlemen Captains of the Navy:

JOHN BARRY,
 SAMUEL NICHOLSON,
 SILAS TALBOT,

4. JOSHUA BARNEY,

5. RICHARD DALE, 6. THOMAS TRUXTON,

Ranking in the order in which their names are stated, and their appointments were communicated to them 5 June, 1794.

Captain Barney declined accepting, not from any disinclination to serve his country, but in consequence of the arrangement as to rank. This produced a vacancy, which was filled on 18 July, 1794, by the appointment of James Sever, to take rank after Captain Truxtun.

The following shows the distribution of the officers thus appointed, and the constructors and agents, for building the several ships.

On 21 December, 1795, President Washington communicated to the Senate a letter from the Emperor of Morocco, recognizing the treaty of peace and friendship between the United States.

United States.

Peace with Algiers having been concluded, no farther progress could be made in building the frigates; for as we have before seen, the law directed that in such event all proceedings should be suspended.

The President called the attention of Congress to this subject, and stated that serious losses would result from a sudden suspension of the work and the discharge of the valuable corps of artificers and men employed in completing it.

In January, 1796, the Chairman of the Committee of the House of Representatives, to whom the subject of frigates had been referred, called upon the Secretary of War (then charged with the superintendence of the Navy) for information as to the progress made in building them, the expenses incured, etc.

The information was communicated to Congress, and on 20 April following "An Act supplementary to an Act, entitled an Act to provide a Naval Armament" passed, authorizing the President to continue the construction and equipment of the frigates of 44 guns and one frigate of 36 guns, appropriating for this purpose the unexpended balance of the $688,888,82 (which had been appropriated for the six frigates by Act of 9 June, 1794), and the sum of $80,000, which by the Act of 9 June, was appropriated for a provisional equipment of galleys, but no part of which had been expended on that object.

This Act continued the construction and equipment of three of the six frigates and discontinued the remaining three, notwithstanding such progress had been made that the whole six might have been built, launched and completely equipped within the year.

President Washington, in his speech to both Houses of Congress, T December, 1796, after referring to the many delays and isappointments arising out of the European war and the final arrangements made to the Dey and regency of Algiers, observes among other things, the following:

"To an active external commerce the protection of a naval force is Indispensable."

"To secure respect to a neutral flag requires a naval force, organized and ready to vindicate it from insuit and aggression;" and asks, "Will it not, then, be advisable to begin without delay to provide and lay up the materials for the building and equipping of ships of war, and to proceed in the work by degrees, in proportion, as our resources shall render it practicable, without inconvenience; so that a future war of European powers, particularly those of Great Britain and France, and the suffering which ensued therefrom to our seafaring citizens, were the causes of our maritime war with the latter nation, and the consequent extension of our naval establishment.

On 9 April, 1798, the Secretary of War, who was charged with the dut yof superintending the concerns of the Navy, as well as those of the Army. addressed to th of the Cantes States at the Freshelt might direct. Eighty thousand donars was appropriated for this object.

On 21 May, 1798, Benjamin Stoddert, Esq., of Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, was appointed to the office of Secretary of the Navy, and in June, 1798, entered upon the duties of his office as Secretary of the Navy.

From this date we commence the compilation of the General Register of the Navy.

UNITED STATES NAVAL ACADEMY.

The United States Naval Academy was founded in 1845, by Hon. George Bancroft, Secretary of the Navy, in the administration of President James K. Polk. It was formally opened October 10, of that year, under the name of the Naval School, with Commander Franklin Buchanan as Superintendent. It was placed at Annapolis, Md., on the land occupied by Fort Severn, which was given up by the War Department for the purpose. The course was fixed at five years, of which the first and last only were spent at school, the Intervening three being passed at sea. This arrangement was not strictly adhered to, the exigencies of the service making it necessary, in many cases, to shorten the period of study. In January, 1846, four months after the opening of the school, the students consisted of 36 Midshipmen, of the date of 1840, who were preparing for the examination for promotion; 13 of the date of 1841, who were to remain until drafted for service at sea; and 7 Acting Midshipmen, appointed since September of the previous year. The Midshipmen of the date of 1840 were the first to be graduated, finishing their limited course in July, 1846, and they were followed in order by the subsequent dates until the reorganization of the School. In 1851.

In September, 1849, a Board was appointed to revise the plan and regulations of the Naval School. The Board was composed of the following officers:

Commodore William B. Shubrick, Commander Franklin Buchanan, Commander Samuel F. Dupont, Commander George P. Upshur, Surgeon W. S. W. RUSCHENBERGER, Professor William Chauvenet, Captain Henry Brewerton, U. S. A.

The plan reported by the Board was approved, and went into operation July 1, 1850. The new organization provided for a course of seven years, the first two and last two at the School and the three intermediate years at sea. The School was placed under the supervision of the Bureau of Ordnance and Hydrography, and its name was changed to the United States Naval Academy. The corps of professors was enlarged, the course was extended, and the system of separate departments, with executive heads, was fully adopted. It was provided that a Board of Visitors should make an annual inspection of the Academy, and report upon its condition to the Secretary of the Navy. A suitable vessel was attached to the Academy as a practice-ship, and the annual practice-cruises were begin. were begun.

After the system had been in operation a year new changes were proposed, and the recommendations of the Academic Board on the subject were referred to the Board of Examiners of the year 1851, composed of the following officers:

Commodore David Conner, Captain Samuel L. Breese, Commander C. K. Stribling, Commander A. Bigelow, Commander Franklin Buchanan, Lleutenant Thomas T. Craven.

The change recommended by the Board of Examiners, and adopted by the Department, consisted mainly in leaving out the requirement of three years of sea-service in the middle of the course, thus making the four years of study consecutive. The practice-cruise supplied the place of the omitted sea-service, and gave better opportunities of training. The change went into operation in November, 1851, together with other improvements recomnended by the Board. The system has continued, with slight modifications, to the present time. The first class to receive the benefit of it was that which entered in 1851. Six members of this class completed the course in three years, and were graduated in June, 1854; the rest of the class followed in 1855.

In May, 1861, on the outbreak of the war, the Academy was removed to Newport, R. I. The three upper classes were detached and ordered to sea, and the remaining Acting Midshipmen were quartered in the Atlantic House and on board the frigates Constitution and Santee. In September, 1865, the Academy was moved back to Annapolis, where it has since remained.

In May, 1861, on the outbreak of the war, the Academy was removed to Newport, R. I., This three upper classes were detented and ordered to sea, and the remaining Acting Midsantee. In September, 1865, the Academy was moved back to Annapolis, where it has since remained.

Sente remained.

When the Bureau of Navigation was established, July 5, 1862, the Academy was piaced with the provided of the supering of the provided of the supering of the provided of the supering of the s dred and eighty-two, shall reduce the number of appointments of final graduates at the end of their six years' course below twelve in each year to the Line of the Navy, and not less than two shall be appointed annually to the Engineer Corps of the Navy, nor less than one annually to the Marine Corps; and if the number of vacancies in the lowest grades aforesaid, occurring in any year shall be greater than the number of final graduates of that year, the surplus vacancies shall be filled from the final graduates of following years, as they shall become available.

"That after the fourth day of March, eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, the minimum age of admission of cadets to the Academy shall be fifteen years and the maximum age twenty years."

age of admission of cadets to the Academy shall be fifteen years and the maximum age twenty years."

In October, 1897, a post-graduate course in Naval Architecture, for the education of officers for the Construction Corps of the Navy, was established; and a class was formed from the naval cadets that had finished the four years' course in that year.

By an act of Congress, approved March 3, 1899, "the officers constituting the Engineer Corps of the Navy" were "transferred to the Line of the Navy," thereby repealing so much of the act of Congress, approved March 2, 1889, as relates to the separation of naval cadets of the first class into Line and Engineer divisions.

This same act having limited the number of Constructors in the Navy to forty, the post-graduate course in Naval Architecture was discontinued.
