1 About this document

This is the Linux Consultants HOWTO. It is a listing of companies providing commercial Linux related support. It is maintained by Martin Michlmayr <tbm@sypher.com>.

If you need to know more about the Linux Documentation Project or about Linux HOWTO's, feel free to contact the supervisor Greg Hankins <gregh@sunsite.unc.edu>.

Greg Hankins will post the listing to several national and international newsgroups on a monthly basis. In addition, the Consultants HOWTO is available via FTP at ftp://ftp.sypher.com/tbm/HOWTO or can be found on the World Wide Web at http://www.sypher.com/tbm/Consultants-HOWTO. New versions of the Consultants HOWTO are always placed at these two sites first, so please be sure to check if the copy you are reading is out of date!

EMail preferred, phone very doable, inhouse can be arranged, individual training with inhouse, group training available also.

Sample prices:

Simple questions via EMail are generally handled at no charge, ongoing EMail consulting US$25-$50, ongoing EMail support contract (seperate mail addresses available, are handeled first) available for about US$10 a month for 6 months or more. Phone support available if local to (703)281 exchange, or you pick up the tab, generally used as an extension to EMail support. Inhouse setup as little as US$50, with network setup about US$100, if hardware setup about US$150. The more systems we setup, the less it costs. Classes available for more than 5 people: topics ranging from simple installation, to C/C++ development, to system administration, to server setup and administration, etc. Students are generally welcome (and encouraged) to maintain EMail corespondance after the class, asking questions, and sharing experiences. If hourly rates are perfered, we like to stay below US$30, and are often willing to work for advertising space or endorsements.

We can fine tune homogeneous and heterogeneous networks with Linux/Unix nodes and others TCP/IP capable. We also have an evolving secure operating environment based on Linux which is complete but does not (yet) come with installation scripts/programs and is currently only available for Intel.

We'll call it Linux generations. Gladly demo it and use it to build a LAN/WAN with shadow/NYS/DNS for secure nodes, gateways and networks.

Sample prices:

US$90/hour. Depends on the kind of work and duration.
