

Julie Domel

Julie began her library career as a business and science librarian at the Houston Public Library. Since 2000, she has been a news researcher at the San Antonio Express-News, her hometown paper. Her assigned teams are Features, Business and Projects. In addition to research, she also manages the newsroom wiki and serves as super-user for the photo archive. As a blogger for mysa.com, she creates content for Ask the Researcher and feeds her Battlestar Galactica obsession on mysa's TV blog, The Potato Report.

Julie has a bachelor's degree in Finance and an MLS from the University of Texas at Austin. She is currently serving as the Treasurer of the Texas Chapter of SLA.

Lynne Palombo

Lynne Palombo joined The Oregonian in 2000. Prior to that, she was a news researcher for the Palm Beach Post. Lynne has been a member of SLA since 1996. She is currently the Elections Chair for the division; in 2004 Lynne was the recipient of the C.B. Hayden Fellowship. Lynne is also a member of IRE.

She has a bachelor's in mass communications from Emerson College and an MLIS from Simmons College. Lynne is one of three researchers who worked on The Oregonian's 2001 Pulitzer winning series, Liberty's Heavy Hand.

Amy Disch

Amy Disch is the library director at The Columbus Dispatch in Columbus, Ohio. She joined the paper in September 2005 as a news researcher and prior to that, spent five and a half years working as a library assistant for the Wisconsin State Journal and The Capital Times, the two daily newspapers in her hometown of Madison, Wisconsin.

Amy has a Bachelor's degree in Communication Arts, with an emphasis on film history and a Master of Arts degree in Library and Information Studies, both from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She is very active in the News Division, where she currently serves as Secretary and Webmaster and will assume the role of chair-elect in January 2009.

Amy is currently the president of the central Ohio chapter of SLA and is a lecturer for the School of Information Sciences at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville.

Anne Holcomb

Anne Holcomb is online content editor at the Kalamazoo Gazette and its web site; she lives and works in beautiful southwestern Michigan. Previously she worked as a solo news librarian at the Gazette for three years. Anne is a graduate of Albion College and the University of Michigan School of Information. This is her fourth SLA conference as a member of the News Division. Anne is also a blogger on the KalamaBrew beer blog. She's happy to be visiting the Pacific Northwest, home to the second best craft beer scene in the U.S. (after Michigan).

David Milliron

David is Vice President of Media Services for Caspio and is one of the country's foremost experts in database reporting and analysis with more than 20 years experience in print and online publishing. He also teaches journalism part-time at Emory University in Atlanta.

Prior to joining Caspio, David served as director of computer-assisted reporting and most recently senior manager of the Internet Technologies Group for the Atlanta Journal-Constitution. He has also worked for Gannett News Service, The Tampa Tribune and The News-Press in Fort Myers, Fla.