Dams are failing as rivers rise in wake of record rainfall

Governor declares state of emergency

Staff/news services — 6/09/2008 1:55 pm

Wisconsin Emergency Management officials say two dams are failing in southeast Wisconsin and a handful of others are eroding, overtopping or may fail.

The Upper Spring Dam in Palmyra and Wycena Dam in Columbia County are failing.

The state says Mirror Lake Dam in the Wisconsin Dells is overtopping and may fail.

In Sauk County, Dell Creek Dam on Lake Delton is overtopping. The lake there overflowed and washed across the highway into the Wisconsin River, sweeping away three homes.

The Danville River Dam downstream of Columbus is overtopping. Authorities there now say evacuation is mandatory.

The state's Department of Natural Resources is flying over dams in Vernon County and sending engineers to other counties to assess damages.

Gov. Jim Doyle on Sunday declared a state of emergency in Dane County and 28 other counties, and Madison broke a 134-year-old record for most rainfall ever on June 8, as storms continued to pound the area, dumping more water onto the already saturated ground.

Madison received 4.11 inches of rainfall Sunday, shattering the previous record of 1.4 inches set in 1874.

A flood warning was issued for the area around Spring Creek in Lodi. The

MASSACHUSETTS FIRM TO ACQUIRE MADISON'S THIRD WAVE

Hologic Inc., a Bedford, Mass., company, will acquire Madison-based Third Wave Technologies for about $580 million, according to a jointly released statement. Third Wave shareholders will receive $11.25 per share, which is an approximately 24 percent premium above Third Wave's average trading price during the last three months according to the statement.

The board of directors of both companies unanimously approved the transaction in which Hologic is to acquire all of Third Wave's stock in a cash offer. The transaction is to be completed during the third quarter this year and will be financed by Goldman, Sachs, Inc.

Third Wave, which was founded in 1993, is a biotechnology company that develops molecular diagnostic tests that detect genetic variations associated with a variety of co
